LOCAL FAIR
BIG SUCCESS
EVERY WAY

Special Features as Conceived by President Denham Prove a Great Help.

The Clarksburg fair, one of the most successful held by the combined associations here, came to a close Friday evening. Weather conditions and excellent management, combined, made the exposition a record one from the standpoint of attendance. For the first time in the history of the organization, there was a great crowd present on the last day. In the past the attendance dwindled to practically the race followers on the Fridays of the meetings.

President S. C. Denham, who directs the destinies of the fair, hit upon happy ideas when he arranged three special days during the week. The first, children's day, brought hundreds of little ones to the grounds and they were well entertained by various methods which had a pony given away as the climax. Wednesday was farmer's day with experts from many sections to talk. This was a most happy thought and a paying one, too, for Wednesday's attendance was nearly 8,000.

Governor Hatfield was the chief feature of Thursday, the big day of the fair, and despite the fact that it always draw well, his appearance was responsible for at least 5,000 additional people who came especially to see and hear him.

Denham's Ideas Fine.
Mr. Denham's conclusions that added feature are becoming necessary to instill interest in fairs was successfully proved during the week and future fairs will likely see more radical changes than those of this week.

Financially, the week was successful, although it has not been given out as to the actual attendance and the money cleared. The fact, however, stands out that while the fair was uniform in its excellence it had no extremely costly features and that the attendance was uniformly larger than in former years.

The week passed off without serious accidents to mar the pleasures of those who attended. The affair of Tuesday, when a little boy ran into a fast going motorcycle, to secure a broken bone in his chest was the worst accident of the meeting. The news that he is recovering in a most satisfactory manner takes much of the sting from this.

Collins Wins Drivers' Prize.
Lou Printon unexpectedly sneaked through an opening to the fence in the final heat of the 2:17 trot on the final program of the Central West Virginia Fair Friday afternoon and caused the race to go six heats, but it was finally taken by the favorite, Cedar Lake Girl.

The 2:12 pace decided the special drivers' purse of $1,000 offered to the drivers taking the most money at the Fairmont and Clarksburg fairs. Lloyd Collins, 19-year-old son of W. Collins, of London, Can., got the first prize of $500, while second and third prizes were divided between W. L. Brennan, of Erie, Pa., and Harvey Ernest, of Cleveland, O.

GYPSY JAILED

But She Obtains Her Release by Paying $5 Back to Farmer.

A. P. Carder, a farmer of near Lost Creek, does not think much of the gypsy fortune telling game. He went into a gypsy tent on the fair grounds Friday to have his fortune told by a gaudily attired female nomad and was relieved of $5 in cash. He did not think that was square at all so he had the gypsy woman arrested and put in the county jail. Then he went before Magistrate R. E. Kidd and swore out a warrant against her, charging her with robbery.

The gypsy woman did not appear to like the situation, either, so she paid his money back under conditions that he withdraw the charge. He did so and she was released from custody. The woman's name was registered as Jane Doe.

Mrs. Mitchell was formerly employed in the Telegram job department.

Miss Williams, Hostess.

A reception given a recent evening by Miss Lena Williams of Bridgeport, with Dr. W.
